DEBUTANTE AFFAIRS

Miss Molly Baily Will Be Honor Guest at a Luncheon Today—Dance for Miss Cassatt.

Two debutante affairs will occupy the busy little buds today. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Winter Baily gave a large luncheon at the Bellevue-Stratford for their daughter, Miss Molly Wood Baily, who was formally presented to society on October 8, at a tea which her parents gave at their place in Stratford. Miss Baily is small and very vivacious, and has been very popular in the younger set.

The guests who were received by Mrs. Baily and her daughter were seated at small tables which were beautifully decorated with autumn leaves and small hardy chrysanthemums. Each debutante received a dainty bouquet.

Tonight the gaiety will be on the Main Line, when Mrs. Gardner Cassatt will give a small dinner-dance at her beautiful country home, Kelse, in Berwyn, in honor of her daughter, Miss Eugenia Cassatt.

The dinner will be confined almost entirely to the debutants set, and later the guests will be augmented by a few additional guests, among them members of the very young married set and some of the older dancing men.

Miss Cassatt will wear an extremely girlish frock, which is a combination of lace and tulle over chiffon and a soft satin drop skirt. The dancing will continue until midnight.

CHESTER AND VICINITY

Miss Eunice Beniston, of Prospect Park, has returned from a week's visit at Fort Washington, where she was the guest of Miss Margaret Bauer.

William W. Johnson and family have returned to their home at Edgelystone from a visit to friends at Childs, Me.

Mrs. William Marshall and Mrs. Thomas Devonshire, of Linwood, have returned from Edgemoor, Del., where they spent several days with friends.

Miss Emma Calvert, of Glen Riddle, is the guest of Miss Violet Geary at Prospect Park. Mr. and Mrs. Irwin D. Wood, of Ridley Park, are on an automobile trip through the New England States.

THE DRAMA

HAZEL DAWN Coming to the Garrick in Victor Herbert's light opera, "The Debutante."

THEATRICAL BAEDEKER

ADELPHI—"A Pair of Slices," fares by Edward Peple. Two business partners shoot a cold hand, the winner to retain the business, the loser to become his body servant for a year. Delightfully laughable.

BROAD—"Lady Betty Martingale," new comedy by John Luther Long and Frank Statton. A noble lady of 170 marries a man condemned to be hanged so as to escape her debts. But the man is pardoned!

FORREST—"Papa's Darling," musical comedy by Ivan Caryll. On the excuse of having a mythical son, a professor of moral psychology visits Paris and—well, musically accompanied complications follow.

GARRICK—"The Yellow Ticket," by Michael Morton. Florence Reed, revealed as an actress of superlative ability in a thrilling melodrama of Russia.

KEITH'S—Miss Adeline Genes, petite danseuse, in absolutely enchanting dances.

LITTLE THEATRE—"Arms and the Man." Revival of Bernard Shaw's play. Shaw said war was purgatory—but 'twas before he met the Kaiser.

LYRIC—"Passing Show of 1914," revue from the New York Winter Garden. Frivolous and sunny. George Monroe gives original views on "white slavery."

WALNUT—"Way Down East." Nineteen years old—and appealing as ever. Presented by a capable company.

FLASHES FROM "STARS"

Hazel Dawn will begin an engagement at the Garrick Theatre Monday, November 2, in "The Debutante," a new musical play, for which Harry B. Smith provided the book, Robert B. Smith the lyrics and Victor Herbert the music. Miss Dawn's tour is under the management of John C. Fisher, who was the senior partner of the firm that originally produced "Florodora" in this country. The scenes of "The Debutante" are laid in England and Paris. "The Debutante" Manager Fisher has engaged an excellent cast of players, among them being Will West, William Danforth, Alan Mudie, Robert G. Pitkin, Stewart Baird, J. Abbott Worthing, Thomas Reynolds, Zoe Barnett, Maude Odell and Sylvia Jason. More than 100 persons are connected with the organization supporting Miss Dawn in the new venture, which includes a complete orchestra, selected by Victor Herbert.

Mme. Alla Nazimova, the Russian actress, opened her season at the Apollo Theatre, Atlantic City, last night, in Basil Haasting's new play, "That Sort."

Miss Elisabeth Marbury, who has been a dramatic agent for 25 years, and John W. Rumsey have announced that they had purchased the play agency of Selwyn & Co., as well as that firm's interest in the American Play Company, an organization for the leasing of stock plays. Archibald Selwyn, Edgar Selwyn and Crosby Gale, composing the firm of Selwyn & Co., therefore retire as authors and devote themselves entirely to the production of plays. Miss Marbury and Mr. Rumsey have arranged to combine their interests under the name of the American Play Company, Inc., with a capital stock of $500,000, and have purchased the play agencies and associated interests of Selwyn & Co., Elisabeth Marbury, the John W. Rumsey Play Company, the American Play Company and the De Mille Company. This new corporation will handle not only stock plays but original unproduced manuscripts, and will confine itself simply to representing dramatists. It will not engage either in the production of plays or in their purchase. The American Play Company, Inc., represents such current successes as "Under Cover." It pays to

The Winter Garden management announces that "Germany" has been added to the ensemble number called "The Call of the Colors," in "Dancing Around," the new Winter Garden show, in New York. The German costumes were not ready for the opening night.

George W. Monroe, comedian of "The Passing Show of 1914," tells the following story: "An old actor lately told me how the elder Wallack once played in a romantic drama, in which, after taking an impassioned leave of the heroine, he leaped on a horse placed in the wings, and dashed across the stage. Wallack objected to this rightly gallop, and it was, therefore, arranged that one of the supers, who closely resembled the actor, should make the ride. He was accordingly dressed exactly like Wallack, and sent to the theatre to rehearse. He carried off his part well, and the stage manager departed. But the super was not satisfied and complained to a young member of the company who happened to be present. 'Why see here,' he said, 'that thing is too dead easy. A man with a wooden leg could do it with his eyes shut. I used to be in a circus. Couldn't I stand up on this here equine and do a few stunts?' 'Certainly,' exclaimed the other; 'that would be all right. Go ahead.' 'You think the old party wouldn't object,' said the super doubtfully. 'Object' returned the player. 'Why he'd be tickled to death. Do it!' That evening, when the critical point was reached, Wallack was gratified to see his counterpart standing ready beside the horse. 'Love, good night—good night,' cried the hero, preparing to drop over the edge of the balcony. 'Stay!' cried the heroine, clinging round his neck. 'You ride perhaps to death.' 'Nay, sweet, say not so; I ride to honor. With thoughts of thee in my heart no harm can come. Good night—good night.' He tore himself from her frantic embrace and dropped out of sight of the audience. 'Go!' he blazed to the man. As the horse leaped forward on to the stage the fellow gave a mighty vault and alighted standing on its bare back. He threw up one foot gracefully and danced easily on the other, and just before it was too late, leaped into the air, turned a somersault, landed on the horse's back and bounded lightly to the stage."

Elsie Pileer, a dainty little dancer of "The Passing Show of 1914," is a sister of the renowned Harry, who taught the no less-renowned Gaby Deslys to "trip the light fantastic." Elsie Pileer is now 17 years old. Her first stage experience was in "Clowland," in which she did a solo dance. With her brother, she did a tango divertissement in the "Little Parisienne." Throughout the show at the Lyric little Elsie Pileer, Winifred Gilrain and Ivan Bankoff, the Russian dancer, flit about as turkey trot, tango and maxixe.

William A. Brady will shortly produce a massive production of Thompson Buchanan's "Life." In the play are 52 speaking characters and it entails an ensemble of more than 100. Among the players engaged for the production are Mrs. Stuart Robson, Leonora Harris, Josephine Drake, Kathleen McDonnell, Lillian Page, Jane Corcoran, Prager Couper, Dion Titherage, John Howers, Walter Hammond, Ralph Stuart, Edingham Pinto, Sheldon Lewis and Lynn Hammond.

Otis Skinner opened his season under the management of Charles Frohman at the Nixon Theatre, Atlantic City, in a new play by Jules Eckert Goodman, entitled "The Silent Voice."
